So much to look forward to...

Bada bing

Bidi bidi bom bom

Boom

It's 2018! 2017 has barely passed and what, it's 2018? How exactly does that work?

Well, here today, gone tomorrow. So as the world turns, here's what we can all expect in the New Year:

- More Trump bashing, hating, and complaining from liberals
- More Trump tweeting
- Many pundits all over news land making up stuff about a variety of issues
- Men will be putting their hands on women where they don't belong
- They will say really stupid shit, too
- Soon the NFL will be over and no one will kneel any more, except in church and marriage proposals
- Colin Kaepernick will still be out of a job
- Unions are going to be in big trouble if AFSCME loses in SCOTUS
- Rauner will make more inane headlines and be the worst governor since...since the last governor
- Blackhawks will not win the cup
- Sox will still smell
- Cubs will excite and charge even more money for a beer
- City of Chicago will still call attempted murders "shootings"
- They will tout success in bringing down murders
- They will forget the obvious that when you shoot everyone already, then of course killings do diminish
- CPD forbids cops to use tasers on criminals who run away, so they will not be able to catch anyone. It's called a "run-away free" card
- The press, politicians, and the public will continue to say bad things about cops
- They will tell everyone to just run away
- The tax plan may or may not be a good thing. Who the hell knows
- The Winter Olympics will be in South Korea. If it's still there.

Happy New Year y'all.

Vita é bella.
