

A Few Minutes with the Boss

A cowardly approach to Jihadism

Scary stuff in Philadelphia. A police officer sitting in his squad is attacked by a black Muslim crazy. He is shot at 11 times and was hit three times in his arm.

The video shows this nut job, and I use the term loosely as I like nuts, runs up to the officer firing a 9mm at the officer. He then goes right up to the window and at point blank range, fires directly at the cop. The video then shows him turning and running away from the officer.

What happens then is sheer bravery. The officer exits his vehicle and pursues his attacker, firing back at his would be assassin. Pride, integrity, guts all in vogue in that picture.

Other officers then arrive and capture this piece of puke who was shot in his ass by our hero cop.

As of this writing, the officer is in critical condition but is expected to survive while facing multiple surgeries in order to save his arm.

Then comes the aftermath. The chief in Philly came on, praising the officer and called it how it is. The suspect is an avowed loyalist to Jihad and confessed to shooting the officer because of his religious beliefs and brotherhood to the ISIS sermons. He confessed, remember.

Then the mayor gets on the air and with a visibly disgusted chief standing next to him, tells reporters and the public that the shooting was in no way related to Islam or the Muslim principles.

It was disgusting because as I said, the suspect already confessed to exactly the opposite. He did the deed due to his Muslim faith. It is so tiring to listen to mayors and other leaders defend losers like this.

Everyone knows it's not all of Islam that approves of this madness, but the focus should be on praising the officer, identifying the problems, and calling out the facts no matter where it leads.

Politicians are very often fools and you don't get more foolish than this. I agree with the Milwaukee, Wisconsin no bs Sheriff Clark when he commented on the mayor's response. "We are all born ignorant, but you have to work very hard to get this stupid."
